

An Open Letter from Latino Leaders on Marriage Equality

Every gay and lesbian person is part of someone's family —is someone's son or daughter, sister or brother, cousin, aunt or uncle. No member of anyone's family, whether they're gay or straight, should face discrimination when they hope to marry the person they love.

As Latinos, we know our families are stronger when we stay together. We never turn our backs on family. That includes supporting the freedom to marry for our gay and lesbian sons, daughters, brothers, sisters, cousins, aunts and uncles.

Relationships between Latino same-sex couples have existed for generations, built on trust, loyalty, and love. Marriage equality would grant legal recognition to these existing committed relationships. These couples want to marry for the same reason straight couples do – to make a lifetime commitment to the person they love, so that they can care for and protect one another through marriage.

Families come in different shapes and sizes. Some include a mother, a father and their children. Others have a mother, the children, and their grandmother. Still others are led by two women who share love and a commitment. All families deserve an equal chance to make it in the world, and all families deserve to be treated with respect by their government.

Legislation currently pending in Springfield would recognize the freedom to marry for gay and lesbian couples. It would give these couples the right to enter into civil marriage. At the same time, the law would protect the right of churches to decide whom they will marry. No church or religious organization would ever be required to perform a marriage contrary to its beliefs.

Imagine if your spouse got sick, but you were not allowed to take time off of work because your employer did not treat you as married. That is what gay and lesbian couples face in our state today. Without the freedom to marry, it is harder for them to take care of each other.

The Illinois General Assembly should act now and give same-sex couples the freedom to marry. It is the right thing to do.
